One fish
two fish
Red fish
Blue fish.

Black fish
Blue fish
Old fish
New fish

This one has a little star.

This one has a little car.
Say! What a lot
of fish there are.

Yes. Some are red. And some are blue.
Some are old. And some are new.
Some are sad.
And some are glad.
And some are very, very bad.

Why are they
sad and glad and bad?
I do not know.
Go ask your dad

Some are thin.
And some are fat.
The fat one has a yellow hat.

From there to here,
from here to there,
funny things
are everywhere.

Dr. Seuss

Gary Skaggs, Vice President of University Advancement, died on March 17, 2008 after fighting a battle with brain cancer. Skaggs was diagnosed with brain tumors in early January and spent the last two months undergoing surgery for the tumors. On campus, the mark he has left will be felt not only in the work he did in University Advancement, but the relationships that he cultivated with others. Skaggs graduated from NNU in 1972 and held several jobs before moving back to Nampa in 1992 and working in University Advancement. He started out as the director of planned giving and then became vice president in 1998.

FAREWELL GARY SKAGGS

During his 16 year career, he was instrumental in the fundraising for the new health and science center and the university's scholarship endowment.

Sports Center Charred

Investigators have not ruled out any causes as crews work to clean up the mess

by TREVAN HAUCK

Sunday evening, a two-alarm blaze broke out at NNU's Johnson Sports Center. The official emergency call came in at approximately 5:54 p.m. and fire trucks arrived on the scene shortly thereafter. By that time, many students and community members had gathered to witness the fire. Firefighters worked for several hours to contain the blaze.

Investigators are still looking into the official cause of the fire, but arson has not been ruled out.

At a press conference held Monday by university president Richard Hagood and Nampa City Fire Chief Doug Strosnider, Hagood stated that the fire began in the port beneath the fitness center at the rear of the facility. Several large rolls of turf, supplies for the current conversion of the building's pool to an indoor soccer field, were being stored there. Strosnider said that it was "an extremely hot fire" with temperatures reaching upwards of two thousand degrees Fahrenheit, melting steel doors. Strosnider said that wind was definitely a factor in the rapid spread of the flames.

The fire itself was contained in a relatively small area at the back of the facility, but severe smoke and water damage permeated virtually the entire facility. The building was fully insured and the administration has no doubts that all repairs will be covered. "We are adapting to the challenge that is before us" said Hagood.

There is extensive damage to the interior of the facility. The entire hallway outside the suites on the second floor has been stripped of its drywall and all of the ceiling panels had to be removed. The staircase beyond the suites sustained damage as well and is labeled as "unstable". The fire entered the building around this area and worked its way up the stairs, which eventually lead to the activation of the sprinkler system.

The sprinkler heads have been credited with keeping the fire contained. However, once water hit the fire, super hot black steam was created which billowed throughout the building, condensing onto walls, covering them with thick black stains. Over fifty sprinkler heads went off in the building to combat flames.

When cleanup started, there was over an inch of standing water in the field house and around the front desk. Hagood said that the cleanup crews had to remove some seventy thousand gallons of water leftover from the sprinklers. An estimate on the cost of the damage has yet to be determined.

The crew working on the restoration is working around the clock and will not stop until the job is finished said Hagood. The first goal is to get the classrooms up and running so that classes can resume; classes that were meeting in the JSC are currently using facilities at College Church of the Nazarene.

Hagood also said that the community has quickly rushed in to aid NNU during the cleanup of the JSC. Skyview High School has offered their facilities for NNU sports teams to practice and compete; the Ladies Basketball team will host their last two home games at Skyview. The Men's Basketball team has their last games of the regular season off campus this week. Tippy Burke, a point guard for the men's team, said "I am just glad we got to play our last home game on campus". The Nampa Recreation Center has also offered NNU athletes free passes to work out until the JSC is declared usable.

When asked if the current situation was going to slow down any other building projects on campus, Hagood said that a separate contractor was being used for the new Science building and that there will be no conflict with construction.

Connecting the dots

Ralph Palmen's goal is "to improve the future for students"

by IAN BAUDER

Ralph Palmen, presented with an honorary Doctor of Laws last year by NNU, was on campus Sep. 28 for the NNU Foundation Board of Directors meeting, and to raise awareness about the Foundation. Despite the fact that he is not an NNU graduate, Palmen has dedicated a lot of time and money to help further the university's mission.

A native of Clarkston, Wash., Palmen only attended NNU for one year. He said "I had a lot of ambition, but I wasn't very channeled." After his brief stint at NNU he moved on to begin working in the employment industry, a job he described as a perfect fit. Palmen then moved into the real estate industry, but continued to pursue his love of working as a recruiter. Eventually he started his own company, Express Personnel Service, which has expanded to include almost 600 franchises.

Currently, Palmen works as a speaker, a vocation he says he felt he was called to. He is also a successful author of several self-help books, and president of Pinnacle Forum, an organization that connects Christians who are in places of influence in order to help America to get back in touch with its spiritual values.

The university is very important to Palmen, who sees NNU as a place where students can learn the skills they need to become successful in life, as well as get firm spiritual support in their developing years.

Palmen has been involved with the Foundation Board of Directors since its inception in 1988, and served a term as its chairman. The NNU Foundation is dedicated to helping NNU grow as an institution. Since student's tuition only pays about 60 percent of the school's total costs, the Foundation serves as an important tool for the university.

The Foundation has many visible accomplishments on campus, including the Johnson Sports Center, the Brandt Center, the Helstrom Business Center, the security fence, the key-card system, the Ford/Culver parking lot, and many air conditioners in the dorms. The directors are also heavily responsible for the new science building. The Foundation has many less visible contributions to NNU as well; a number of the scholarships available to students are the result of the Foundation and its members whose desire, like Palmen's, is to improve the future for students.

Dr Walden Hughes to receive Professional Achievement Award in Friday's chapel

by STEPHANIE ELLIOTT

After a careful selection process, Dr. Walden Hughes has been chosen to receive the 2007 Professional Achievement Award for his success as a teacher and composer. He and four other NNU alumni will be presented with awards for their loyalty and service to their alma mater this weekend during the homecoming festivities.

The Professional Achievement Award will be given to Dr. Hughes in recognition of his 30 year career as a piano teacher here at NNU. One of his former students was recently named Music Educator of the Year. Hughes himself received the Master Teacher Certificate from the Music Teachers National Association in 1995, an honor given annually to about three musicians in the United States for "outstanding contribution to the music teaching profession," according to the Piano Technicians Guild website.

This award also serves as recognition of Dr. Hughes' accomplishments as a composer. His 88 piano ensemble compositions and arrangements have been performed in 51 different countries to date. He has been contracted to write musical pieces for performing arts schools and has published 30 articles and various book and CD reviews in a number of professional music journals, including Clavier, Piano Quarterly and American Music Teacher.

"I am certainly humbled and was very surprised when I received the letter indicating the award was coming my way," Dr. Hughes says. "There are many deserving alumni of NNU and somehow they must narrow the award down to a single recipient each year. I will accept the award and proudly display the evidence of it in my office, but I know there are many other deserving alums."

The other recipients of alumni awards are Hugh and Evelyn Friberg, Darrell Marks, and Joseph Lanham.

Hugh and Evelyn Friberg received the Alumnus of the Year award in recognition of their 19 years of teaching at the Bible College in Sitkei, Swaziland. Friberg acted as the registrar and dean for the college and his wife performed as the librarian during their time in Swaziland.

Darrell Marks received the Distinguished Service Award for his 35 years of service in the physics department of NNU. Dr. Marks retired in 1998 with emeriti status but has continued to serve NNU part-time in University Advancement. He has worked with scholarships since his retirement and has initiated or improved 50 scholarships that total out to over $1 million in worth.

Joseph (Jody) Lanham received the Leon Doane Young Alumnus award. The Leon Doane is given to a person who has graduated from NNU in the last 15 years who has demonstrated leadership in community and career. Lanham was chosen by the Alaska Journal of Commerce as one of the top 40 business people under age 40, and he is involved in outreach organizations such as Big Brothers Big Sisters and the Safari Wish program.

Man who walked with King still advocating nonviolent civil rights education

by TREVAN HAUCK

The courage to stand up for yourself and your fellow man in any instance is hard to find. Most of us in this day and age are seldom afforded the opportunity to do so. Reverend James Lawson was given the opportunity in the 1950s and 60s and he took advantage of it.

Lawson was a key figure in the civil rights movement, known for his experience in the art of non-violent resistance. His work began in Nashville Tenn. in the late 1950s by organizing a set of workshops aimed at desegregating the city through non-violent techniques used by Gandhi, specifically the sit in. Lawson trained his students to prepare themselves for all sorts of violence, physical and verbal. Ultimately, the non-violent tactics worked. Nashville began to desegregate, something that the rest of the segregated US could not ignore.

Lawson was invited to speak at Northwest Nazarene University during the "Beloved Community Week", an annual event that was created several years ago to educate students about civil rights by bringing key speakers and advocates to campus.

When asked to comment on whether or not he was prepared for the national attention his efforts received, Lawson said "strategy should be locally devised and if you've done a good job, it's gonna have national and international implications."

It was Martin Luther King Jr. who urged Lawson to drop what he was doing and come work in the south to utilize his experience with non-violent action in December of 1957, a year after Lawson had returned from mission work in India. Working in the south and within the movement brought Lawson into close contact with King. "I found him a warm, loving, brother, friend [and] colleague. I learned in my association with him that he loved to play. He loved to play football, basketball, swim and he was a good athlete...you bounce against him you feel muscle."

Lawson said about King that "I took him for granted for so much, you know, and I regret some of the ways I took him for granted. I took him for granted simply because that's the way it was, we were colleagues and friends."

Today Rev. Lawson lives in Nashville, Tennessee with his wife and continues to speak out around the country about non-violence and its uses in the world against oppression.

"I have never had doubts about the efficacy of non-violence," said Lawson. "Gandhi said that non-violence was the best-kept secret of human history, because what was written about is the wars. There is a fairly large literature of non-violent episodes, and now, this literature is growing because we had the civil rights movement from a non-violent perspective, then you had major non-violent movements in the Philipppians, in Poland, in Chile, in East Germany, in Romania ... There have been all kinds of campaigns in the 20 century and those campaigns are increasingly being studied."

TWIRP

The Ark has landed

by IAN BAUDER and ANDREA HALL

TWIRP (The Woman Is Required to Pay) is the social highpoint of the year. This year's TWIRP seemed to have been less enthusiastically received than in previous years. SGA went against tradition this year, with the inclusion of several new and unproven events; a risky maneuver that had mixed results.

Night One

The addition of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's circus was an excellent idea on the part of Lacey Smith, the SGA Social Vice President. Going out on such a limb could have proven disastrous; however, a vast majority of students enjoyed the "Greatest Show on Earth."

"The circus was a nice addition this year," says sophomore Mark Hanson. Favorite acts included the elephant, the "Upside Down World" couple, and the incredibly ripped trapeze artists. Possibly the worst act circus goers observed was the ringside antics of clown Tom Dougherty, who stretched his trousers to epic proportions and relied heavily on gross anatomical humor to get laughs.

The show that came to Nampa is the smallest show that the Ringling/Barnum and Bailey organization tours, operating with only one ring and smaller animal acts. Perhaps if Nampa was a more desirable show location, the circus experience could have been more nostalgic and exciting.

Night Two

The more relaxed night of the weekend, night two, was a success, but perhaps not to the degree of night one. Many couples skipped the pillow fight and random acts of kindness altogether, in favor of seeing what downtown Boise had to offer. Dinner on Saturday, catered by Panda Express, was a special treat. The extra money spent for "real" food was a nice change from the Dex. The Haunted World, a traditional destination of TWIRP in years past, was looked over in favor of a cheaper option, the Idaho MAiZE. There was some disagreement as to whether this was an improvement or detriment to the evening, but many seemed to enjoy the interactive experience.

All together, it was a successful weekend. Some would say that the theme was limiting to the imagination. Some would argue that pillow fights and random acts of kindness are not worth forty dollars. But in the end, none could say that they didn't enjoy themselves.

Thank You for a great year!
